

We are looking for

Mechanical Engineer (m/f)

for our location in Brussels

The BUTTING Group is one of the European leaders in the processing of stainless steels. We focus our business activities on the production of longitudinally welded stainless steel pipes, fittings, vessels, pipings and components ready for installation. More than 1 400 employees of the family-owned enterprise, founded in 1777, generate an annual turnover of about € 280 million at the locations Knesebeck, Schwedt, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Calgary, Blumenau and Brussels.

MPE s.a., an affiliated company of the BUTTING Group and based in Brussels, operates in high-tech sectors such as the nuclear and aeronautical industries. The company has established a strong reputation in the design/manufacture of complex mechanical parts and additionally offers the design and production of prototypes.

Functions:

- You will analyze customer design proposals, specifications and other data to evaluate the feasibility, maintenance requirements and cost of designs
- You will design new products according to the customer requirements or even going beyond the customer requests and will follow the project during the design and the production
- You will participate in the research and design of new technologies and concepts
- You will assist drafters in developing the structural design of products, using CAD-software
- You will prepare technical documents
- You will report to the Project Coordinator

Profile:

- You successfully completed mechanical engineering studies
- You have good working knowledge of CAD tools as SolidWorks or CATIA
- You are a technically minded engineer, ideally with experience in a manufacturing company working for the power generation or nuclear industry
- You should have the necessary metallurgical or mechanical knowledge in the transformation of metals and/or stainless steels and are able to match an MPE solution to a customer requirement
- You have good inter-personal skills and can negotiate skilfully in French and English, ideally also in Dutch
- You are a good team player
